

International Day of People with Disability
3 December

International Day of People with Disability

Event information kit for community groups

Contents

What is International Day of People with Disability?	3
How community groups can get involved	3
Event ideas	4
Event tips	5
Make your event accessible	7
Join the conversation	10
Key messages	11
Social media	11
Hashtags	12
Newsletter article or website content	13
Shell media release	15
More information	16

What is International Day of People with Disability?

Every year on 3 December, people around the world take part in International Day of People with Disability (IDPwD). It is a day to promote awareness, understanding and acceptance in our community.

A key part of IDPwD are the events that schools, workplaces and community groups hold to mark the day. There are also many other ways you can get involved, including joining the conversation online or taking action in your community to remove barriers and improve accessibility for people with disability.

By listening to the experiences of people with disability we can challenge our own perceptions about disability and make positive changes in the community.

Let's all take action this December, and all year round, to help make our society more inclusive for the 4.4 million Australians disability.

How community groups can get involved

We encourage all community groups and clubs to join us in observing International Day of People with Disability. There are many ways you can get involved:

- Hold or attend an event on, or around, 3 December.
- Join or start a conversation in your community to promote awareness, understanding and acceptance of people with disability.
- Read, watch and listen to the stories and experiences of people with disability to challenge your attitudes and assumptions.
- Take action in your community to remove barriers and improve accessibility for people with disability.
- Help spread the word and share your messages of support for #IDPwD online.

This event information kit includes ideas and tips to help get you started, but we also encourage you find your own unique way to acknowledge and promote the people with disability in your community.

Hold or attend an event

Events are a great way to observe IDPwD and start conversations about accessibility and inclusion in your community. Whether your event is big, small, in-person or online, you'll be helping us to break down barriers and ensure everyone feels valued and included.

It's important to register your event on the IDPwD website www.idpwd.com.au so we know about all of the events happening across Australia for IDPwD. You have the option to keep your event private or have it listed on our community event calendar to encourage people to attend and support your event.

This event information kit includes ideas and tips to help you plan, theme and deliver your event, including making sure your event is accessible for people with disability.

There are also digital and printable resources available on the IDPwD website.

If you are holding an in-person event or gathering for IDPwD, please follow the advice of your state or territory government in regards to COVID-19. Visit the Department of Health website for more information or the Disability Gateway for disability information and support.

Event ideas

Looking for ways you can get involved? This list will help you get started.

Activity	Description
Art show or competition	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Ask local artists to dedicate an art show, or develop a piece of art, on a particular theme or topic related to disability. Run a competition and invite people with disability to submit their artwork. Display the artwork online or at a local gallery.
Awards	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Acknowledge people and groups in your community who take strides towards accessibility and inclusion. This could include rewarding individuals in your specific club or group, or recognising the accomplishments of individuals or businesses leading the way in accessibility and inclusive practices in your community.
Awareness in action	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Put up posters and decorations in your community or workplace and take a group photo to post on social media.
Concert	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Hold a concert. It could feature local musicians or artists with disability or you could provide discounted tickets for people with disability.

Activity	Description
Expo	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Run a disability expo for local disability organisations to provide information about their goods and services. • Include food stalls, entertainment or activities featuring local businesses that employ and support people with disability.
Fundraise or volunteer	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Help a charity organisation that provides services and supports for people with disability by volunteering or supporting a fundraising drive.
Guest speaker	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Organise a guest speaker with disability to speak at your next community event or meeting and share their story.
Morning or afternoon tea	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Host a morning or afternoon tea for your community group. Consider inviting a person with disability, disability advocate and/or your local member to speak.
Sporting game or activity	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Host an inclusive sporting game, activity or group fitness class with special equipment or restricted senses and movements. Examples include seated volleyball, wheelchair basketball or a modified boot camp.
Sausage sizzle	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Hold a sausage sizzle in your community. You can also raise money to support a local disability organisation or charity.
Film screening	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Hold a film screening with short films or videos featuring people with disability or disability themes. Check out Focus on Ability for a great range of short films.
Webinar	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Organise a webinar on a specific topic or theme related to disability or inclusion and invite local organisations and businesses to participate.

Event tips

Once you've decided what type of event you want to hold, here are a few tips to help you plan and deliver your activity.

Set your goal

- Decide what you want to achieve from your event – what is the overall purpose of your event? How will your event contribute to promoting diversity and inclusion in the longer-term?
- Consider the size of your event and who you want to attend – do you want a large event for the whole community or do you want to run smaller activities or events for your particular club, group or workplace? Do you want external speakers and entertainment?

- Make sure you consider your event budget.

Get others on board

- Decide who will organise your event – will you need help from volunteers in the community? Consider putting together an event planning committee to brainstorm ideas and allocate tasks for your event, including organising speakers, catering and activities
- If you need to reach out to external organisations or suppliers to support your event, make sure you get them on board early.

Choose a name and theme

- The official United Nations theme for 2023 will be announced later in the year.
- The 2022 theme was 'Transformative solutions for inclusive development: the role of innovation in fueling an accessible and equitable world'.
- You can choose to incorporate the UN theme in your social media posts, or develop your own theme or key message for the day around general topics such as diversity and inclusion.

Location, location

- Choose a suitable venue that can accommodate your expected number of guests and your requirements – do you need to hire additional staging, audio or equipment? Do you need catering? If your event is outdoors, do you have a wet weather contingency plan?
- Most importantly, make sure your venue is accessible – this includes considering requirements of people with disability who may be supporting or attending your event. See the section Make your event accessible for things to consider.
- Reach out to local disability organisations or experts if you need advice.

Invite special guests or speakers

- Consider inviting a speaker to your event, such as a local community leader, disability advocate or person with lived experience of disability.
- Reach out to special guests early to confirm their availability and any special assistance they may need (e.g. carer, interpreter or catering requirements).

Make it official

- Register your event on the IDPwD website. You have the option to keep your event private or advertise it on our community event calendar.

Spread the word

- Send out your invitations! If you are inviting special guests or members of the public, make sure you give them plenty of notice.

- Consider how you will promote your event, this may include:
 - Email
 - Word-of-mouth
 - Newsletters, bulletins or noticeboards
 - Promotional posters or flyers
 - Advertisement in your local newspaper or pitching your event to local media
 - Listing it on the community event calendar on the IDPwD website.
 - Website or social media - make sure you tag us on Facebook, Twitter or Instagram, or use the hashtag #IDPwD on all of your social media channels.

Plan your event

- Plan and organise all of your event logistics, including catering and equipment. Make sure you consider any additional equipment you may need to hire or source externally to for your event. Check out the Event Checklist below.
- Make sure your event is accessible for guests with disability – see Make your event accessible for some things to consider when planning your event.
- Think about how you will theme and decorate your event, including any printing requirements. Check out the IDPwD website for printable resources, including posters and decorations.
- Check to see if you need any special permits, licenses or insurance for your event and apply for these well in advance.
- Event safety is very important so make sure you understand your work health and safety requirements and have security and first aid arrangements in place if required.

Register your event

- We want to know about all of the events happening across Australia for IDPwD, so make sure you share your event online, tag us on Facebook, Twitter and Instagram, and use the hashtag #IDPwD.

Make your event accessible

If you are planning an event for IDPwD, it's important that you make sure it is accessible for people with disability. Here is a list of some things you should consider.

Planning

- When choosing a venue, check to make sure all areas are accessible, including entrances, aisles, staging and entertainment, catering and seating areas and toilets.
- Check to make sure there are accessible parking spaces and public transport options in close proximity to the venue.
- Make sure your venue has good lighting and ventilation.

- Hire additional equipment if needed to support your event. For example if your event has an entertainment or audio component, consider booking an AUSLAN interpreter or hiring a hearing loop system. Try to limit special effects such as strobe lighting and smoke.
- Allow sufficient time in your event program for people who may need frequent breaks or more time to move between activities.
- Provide a variety of catering options and include items that are easy to pick up and eat. Ensure special meals are clearly labelled.
- Ask your speakers and guests to let you know if they have any additional requirements.
- Seek advice from local disability organisations or experts if you need assistance.

Setting up

- Make sure all areas are accessible and there are no obstacles or trip hazards. This includes securing electrical cables.
- Reserve seating or areas for guests that require special assistance, including people with a hearing or vision impairment, people with wheelchairs or mobility aids, people with assistance dogs, and people with interpreters or carers. This includes reserving a separate, quiet area for guests to take a break if needed.
- Make sure you leave sufficient space between tables and equipment for wheelchairs.
- Check that all of your equipment is at an appropriate height or can be adjusted if needed.

On the day

- Make sure event signage is in place and easily visible. The print should be large enough and written in Plain English so it is easy to understand.
- Make sure all of your event staff and volunteers have been briefed on accessibility so they can assist guests, including location of toilets, designated seating areas and alternative forms of communication.
- Designate staff to meet and greet attendees and invited guests.
- Ensure that all your guests are settled and as comfortable as possible.

Communication

- Use an accessible font for event signage and materials, such as invitations, programs and nametags. Font should be plain, as large as possible (minimum 12 point size) with appropriate spacing and in contrasting colours.
- Make sure your invitations or digital promotions are accessible and provide different methods for people to register or buy tickets, including online, phone and in-person. Also, make sure people are able to let you know if they have any additional requirements.
- If you are using a PowerPoint presentation, use contrasting colours (i.e. light coloured font on a dark background or dark font on a white background). Also have written copies of presentations available on the day. Presenters should also describe any visual content in the presentation.

- If you are using video, make sure all videos have captions and consider audio descriptions where appropriate.
- Consider making written information available in alternate forms such as Easy Read, large print, audio recording or Braille, as appropriate.
- Use appropriate and inclusive language when communicating with people with disability.
- Consider different methods of promoting your event to tailor to a range of disabilities. Also, check any information or materials published online to make sure they are available in an accessible format, such as Word or HTML.

Event planning checklist

Plan your event

- Choose your event
- Book a venue
- Confirm the date and time
- Tell everyone involved in planning your event

Make it official

- Register your event on the IDPwD website

Invite guests and speakers

- Invite officials, community leaders, local stars and/or speakers
- Design and send out your event invitations using the IDPwD logo and style guide

Organise your logistics

- Finalise your event program, speakers and entertainment
- Confirm catering, including special dietary requirements
- Confirm set-up and equipment, including AV, staging and seating arrangements.
- Confirm your final guest list and/or ticketing arrangements
- Confirm parking arrangements and reserve specific parking spots or areas if needed
- Confirm work health and safety, first aid and security requirements
- Book a photographer or organise someone to take photos at your event
- Check that your event is accessible

Make some noise

- Develop promotional materials and apply the IDPwD logo
- Promote your event on your website and social media using the IDPwD tiles

Theme and decorate your event

- Download and print IDPwD resources for your event, including posters, banners, decorations and activity sheets.
- Make your event signage and materials using the IDPwD logo and style guide

Connect with us

- Follow us on Facebook, Twitter and Instagram
- Subscribe to our mailing list on the IDPwD website

After your event

- Thank everyone involved in your event
- Post photos from your event on social media and tag us or use the hashtag #IDPwD
- Share your event with us by completing the Share Your Story form on our website.

Join the conversation

If you can't organise or attend an event, you can still get involved in IDPwD and help raise awareness in your community.

Around one in six people, or 4.4 million Australians, have disability. Not all disability is the same, and some disabilities are invisible. By joining the conversation and listening to the stories and lived experiences of people with disability, we can challenge our own perceptions about disability and help make positive changes in the community.

How you can help spread the word:

- Post messages of support on your social media pages, including details of how you observed IDPwD or what your community is doing to recognise people with disability and promote inclusion.
- Share your story or read other people's stories on social media.
- Publish an article in your community newsletter or send an opinion piece to your local newspaper or publication.
- Send targeted emails to your members, volunteers and stakeholders to encourage them to get involved.
- Talk within your networks – start a conversation at your next group or community meet-up and consider ways you can make your community more accessible and inclusive.
- Support other IDPwD events in your local community or online. Check out our community event calendar for events happening near you.
- Follow us on Facebook, Twitter and Instagram to be part of the community and help spread positive stories about people with disability all year round.

The smallest action can make a difference! To get you started, we have included some key messages, social posts and a newsletter article below. Digital resources are also available on the IDPwD website.

Key messages

- International Day of People with Disability (IDPwD) is a United Nations day recognised day held on 3 December each year.
- Be part of creating an inclusive and diverse community and help to promote awareness, understanding and acceptance of the 4.4 million people with disability in Australia.
- Hold or attend an IDPwD event in your workplace, school or community on or around 3 December to promote inclusion and acceptance of people with disability.
- We all have a role to play in ensuring people with disability have the opportunity to participate in all aspects of community life.
- Get involved in IDPwD at www.idpwd.com.au
- Let's all take action this December, and all year round, to make our society more inclusive for people with disability.

Social media

Social media is a great way to join the conversation and help spread the word about IDPwD in your community. We have provided a few suggested posts to get you started, but feel free to adapt these to suit your event or community and incorporate your chosen theme.

Facebook, Instagram or LinkedIn

Timing	Suggested content
Pre-event	We're holding an event for International Day of People with Disability, Join us [details of the event] to recognise people with disability in our community and promote inclusion. For more details, go to [registered event web link] #IDPwD
Event day	Today we observe International Day of People with Disability. Join us for [details of the event]. Let's all take action this #IDPwD to make our community more accessible, equitable and inclusive for people with disability.
Generic post on IDPwD	Today we observe International Day of People with Disability and acknowledge the 4.4 million Australians with disability. Join the conversation this #IDPwD to help raise awareness, challenge perceptions and break down barriers.

Timing	Suggested content
	Together we can help make our community more accessible, equitable and inclusive for people with disability.
Post-event	Thanks to everyone who attended [event name] for International Day of People with Disability! Let's keep the conversation going all year round to break down barriers and make our community more inclusive for people with disability. [add photos from event] #IDPwD

Twitter

Timing	Suggested content
Pre-event	Join us on [event date] for [event name/details] as we observe #IDPwD and recognise people with disability in our community. Check out [registered event web link]
Event day or generic post on IDPwD	Join us today [at event name (if applicable)] as we observe #IDPwD Let's all work together to make our community more accessible, equitable and inclusive for the 4.4 million Australians with disability.
Post-event	Thanks to everyone who joined us on #IDPwD and for being part of creating a diverse and inclusive community.

Social media tiles are available for you to download on the IDPwD website. We recommend you include alt text for all images you post on your social media channels to ensure your content is accessible for people with disability, particularly people who are blind or have low vision. Make sure you follow and tag us in your IDPwD posts.

IDPwD social media handles:

Facebook @idpwd
<https://www.facebook.com/idpwd>

Twitter @idpwd
<https://twitter.com/idpwd>

Instagram @idpwd_au
https://www.instagram.com/idpwd_au/

Hashtag: #IDPwD

Newsletter article or website content

We have included a basic article template for you to customise with details of your IDPwD event and share in your community newsletter or on your website. Don't forget to incorporate your theme – this can be the official UN theme or a more general theme you've chosen for your event or community group.

International Day of People with Disability with [community group]

International Day of People with Disability (IDPwD) is a United Nations day observed on 3 December each year to increase public awareness, understanding and acceptance of people with disability.

By acknowledging this important day, we can take action to remove barriers for the 4.4 million Australians with disability and contribute to positive change in our community.

This year [community group] will mark International Day of People with Disability by [insert details of your event].

We encourage everyone to get involved and join the event! Together, we can all take action to challenge perceptions about disability, remove barriers and promote inclusive and respectful attitudes and behaviours in our community.

For more information about [event], go to [website address] or contact [phone number/email address]. You can also visit our [Facebook page] for updates.

For more information about IDPwD, including resources, stories, videos and social tiles, visit www.idpwd.com.au or follow @idpwd on Facebook and Twitter, or @idpwd_au on Instagram.

You can also help spread the word and join the conversation online using #IDPwD

Tips for engaging with media

The media is a great way to spread the word about your event so we have included some tips and a shell media release to help you engage with media. Remember to include your chosen theme as part of your pitch and in your media release! If you are not hosting an event but still want to help promote the day, you could also think of a local disability champion or interest story to pitch to local media.

Prepare your pitch

A media release outlines the newsworthy points about your event.

- Make it stand out and highlight why your event is interesting, unique or newsworthy – consider the who, what, when, where, why and how.
- Use quotes from the head or spokesperson of your organisation.
- Keep it short and use clear, concise and factual language.

Find an outlet or journalist

Contact local publications or journalists who may be interested in your event.

- Start with a Google search of local media outlets. Local media are more likely to be interested in events where their publication or news is distributed.
- Journalists often have particular subject matters that they cover, for example sports, education, health or disability. You should be able to find contact details for journalists on the outlet's website or social media pages.

Reach out

Contact media and pitch your story.

- It's best to contact journalists two weeks before your event and provide them with a copy of your media release and the contact details of your spokesperson.
- When you contact the journalist or news desk, introduce yourself and outline the key points that make your event newsworthy.
- Print and online journalists particularly like images so offer photos from previous events or explain why this year's event will make a great photo opportunity.

Follow up

- Keep in touch with media and confirm their attendance the day before your event.
- Facilitate and set-up interviews and photo opportunities on the day.
- Don't forget to follow-up and check if you received any media coverage from your event.

Shell media release

[Community group] hosts an event for International Day of People with Disability

[Community group] is hosting a [event details] for International Day of People with Disability (IDPwD) 2022.

[Spokesperson] for [Community group] is encouraging the [area/region] community to get involved in IDPwD this year and attend the [event details] on [date] at [location].

“International Day of People with Disability is held on 3 December each year to increase public awareness, understanding and acceptance of people with disability.

“By hosting the [event details], we want to listen to the experiences and stories of the local members of our community with disability.

“It is also an opportunity for us to challenge our perceptions and attitudes about disability, break down barriers and help make our community more accessible and inclusive.

“There will be [briefly outline activities, i.e. music, food, entertainment] suitable for [all ages/families].”

“Our event is accessible and we encourage all people with disability, their families and carers to come along and join us,” [Spokesperson] said.

Thousands of community organisations, workplaces and schools have held events across Australia to observe IDPwD since it was sanctioned by the United Nations (UN) in 1992.

“We are pleased to represent [Community/location] to recognise this important day and help make positive changes to the lives of 4.4 million Australians with disability,” [Spokesperson] said.

“We want everyone to get involved in IDPwD this year as we all have a role to play in ensuring people with disability have the opportunity to participate in all aspects of community life.”

For more information about [event], visit [website address] contact [phone/email address].

To learn more about IDPwD and how you can get involved, go to www.idpwd.com.au

More information

Go to www.idpwd.com.au to find out more and access stories, videos and resources. You can also subscribe to receive updates.

Follow us on Facebook, Twitter and Instagram and use the hashtag #IDPwD to join the conversation online.

You can also email us at idpwd@dss.gov.au or call us on 1800 440 385 from Monday to Friday, 9am to 5pm AEST/AEDT (TTY users, phone 1800 555 677 and ask for 1800 440 385).