

International Day of
People with Disability

Information Kit for Workplaces

International Day of People with Disability (IDPwD) is a United Nations day, observed each year on 3 December. In Australia, it is a day to promote awareness, understanding and acceptance of the 5.5 million people with disability in the country.

A key part of IDPwD each year are the events and activities that schools, workplaces and community groups hold to mark the day.

Workplaces play a vital role in creating a more inclusive and diverse community in Australia. This information kit has been developed to help workplaces get involved.

Did you know?<sup>1</sup>

- There are 5.5 million people with disability in Australia – that's 1 in 5 people
- 15% of people in Australia aged 0-64 years have disability
- 52% of people in Australia aged 65 years and over have disability
- 7.9% of all Australians have a profound or severe disability
- 9.9% or 1 in 10 people with disability in Australia have experienced discrimination.

For more information about disability statistics in Australia, please visit the Australian Bureau of Statistics website.

IDPwD theme

Each year, the UN announces an official theme for IDPwD in late October or early November. We do not know what they will announce. The theme usually focuses on how society can strive for inclusion by removing barriers for people with disability.

We will update this information kit as soon as the UN announces the 2025 theme. We will also publish an Easy Read version of the theme on our website.

You can use the official theme in your own IDPwD activity or event. You can also develop your own theme around the topics of disability, diversity and inclusion. There are some links on our Inclusion resources webpage to help get you started.

You can learn more about the theme on the About IDPwD webpage.

Ways your workplace can get involved

There are many ways your workplace can recognise IDPwD on 3 December and all year round. Your involvement can be big or small. We encourage you to get creative and mark IDPwD in your own unique way.

Host your own IDPwD event or activity

Holding events or activities are a great way to observe IDPwD and start inclusive conversations at work.

We encourage you to register your workplace event, so we know about all the events happening across Australia. You can keep your event private or register as a public event and be featured on our community event calendar. To find out more, visit the Event Registrations page on the IDPwD website.

Here are some ideas to get you started.

Learn about disability inclusion together

- Inclusive workplaces benefit from the diversity of perspectives and experiences.
- Our Inclusion Resources page has useful links like an inclusive language toolkit for recruitment, and ways to host accessible events and meetings.
- You can also encourage your managers and team members to take part in disability awareness training.

Film screening

- Host a screening of short films or videos that feature people with disability or disability themes.
- Check out previous IDPwD Ambassador videos to learn about their lived experience.
- Visit the Focus on Ability Short Film Festival website to explore a diverse selection of short films. If you'd like to showcase their films at your event, you can send a request to admin@focusonability.com

Morning or afternoon tea

- Host a morning or afternoon tea with your workplace to recognise IDPwD.
- Consider inviting a person with disability or disability advocate from your local community to speak about their experiences.

Volunteering

- If your workplace offers volunteer leave, consider volunteering with a local organisation that provides services and supports for people with disability.

Workplace awards

- Acknowledge the people in your workplace who are championing disability inclusion.
- This could include recognising the accomplishments of staff members or teams who are leading the way in adopting inclusive practices at work.
- You can use the editable IDPwD Certificate or create your own template and include elements of the IDPwD logo and branding.

Join the conversation

If you can't hold or attend an event, you can still get involved in IDPwD and help raise awareness. Here are some ideas:

- Get your colleagues together and support other IDPwD events in your local community or online. Check out our community event calendar for events happening near you.
- Learn more about IDPwD by checking out our fact sheets, which are available in 12 languages other than English, Auslan and Easy Read.
- Promote IDPwD in your online meetings and emails using customisable resources like the IDPwD PowerPoint presentation, virtual meeting backgrounds and signature blocks.
- Follow or tag IDPwD on Facebook \(@idpwd\) and Instagram \(@idpwd\_au\) to help spread stories about people with disability and be part of IDPwD all year round.
- Publish an article or acknowledgement in your workplace newsletter about IDPwD (see template below).

International Day of People with Disability with [organisation name]

International Day of People with Disability (IDPwD) is a United Nations day observed on 3 December each year to increase public awareness, understanding and acceptance of people with disability.

There are 5.5 million people with disability in Australia – that's 1 in 5 people. By acknowledging this important day, we can take action and contribute to positive change at work and beyond.

Workplaces play a key role in ensuring people with disability can participate in all aspects of community life.

This year [organisation] will mark IDPwD by [insert details of your event or activity].

We encourage everyone to get involved this IDPwD. Together, we can challenge perceptions about disability. We can also help remove barriers, and promote inclusive and respectful attitudes and behaviours in our community.
